This volume concludes publication of the principal inscriptions of the Nineteenth Dynasty, to its end. The scope and principles that underlie the presentation of texts in this volume remain as stated in the preface to Volume I. As throughout, this volume also is intended to be comprehensive, not exhaustive.

As work on this volume has extended over a dozen years or so, the main theme of this preface is one of thankful acknowledgement for much help received during the recording, collating and assembling of the very scattered materials here presented.

First and foremost in this centenary year, it is fitting toiterate the help afforded by the University of Liverpool to fieldwork in Egypt, through its award to the undersigned of the E. Peet Travelling Prize (1962/63), and subsequent support from the then Joint Committee on Research, particularly for travel-expenses. Work in Luxor in 1970 benefited especially from an award kindly made by the Sir Ernest Cassel Trust in that year. Useful success to many outlying sites was gained through the advantage of being able to accompany a series of Nile journeys under the auspices, successively, of Messrs. Bales (1963), Fairways and Sivyer (1964), and especially of Swans (1964–76). Other costs of travel, materials, recording, etc., were borne by the undersigned.

With Volumes I to III, Mr. Douglas Birch and his colleagues (Faculty Photographic Service) have, as ever, kindly rendered technical assistance; and likewise, my Semitics colleague, Mr. A. Millard, electric typing facilities.

However, as will already be apparent from many rubrics scattered throughout this volume, my circle of indebtedness embraces palms far beyond the confines of Liverpool. Therefore, it is with the warmest pleasure that I acknowledge here with all gratitude the kindness and help of the following colleagues and institutions across the years. The Egyptian Antiquities Organisation and the Egyptian Museum, Cairo, and the Centre of Documentation, du-ing 15 years' activity in Egypt (1962-76), for their so willing helpfulness. To Professor E.W. Fairman and the Egypt Exploration Society for generous permission to utilize unpublished data from Amarah West go special thanks. Similarly, to the Griffith Institu-through Dr. J. Mälek and Miss Helen Murray, goes my undying gratitude for data and kind responses to my requests - as to the equaly patient colleagues at the British Museum, Egyptian Antiquities (Mr. T.G.H. James, and especially Dr. M.L. Bierbrier). Abroad, a warmest thanks are proffered to the Louvre (Mme Professor Christi-ane Desroches-Noblecourt and colleagues), to the Brooklyn Museum, New York (Dr. R.S. Bianchi), to Linköping Museum, Sweden, and to Professors R.A. Caminos and J. Vercoutter for data kindly given.
To Messrs. J. Ruffle and D.A. Lowle, my hearty thanks for filling lacunae in my documentation (both requests and oversights!).

As ever my warm gratitude goes to Sir Basil Blackwell and hi staff for their graciously unfailing aid in publication, and to my departmental colleagues for much kindness. And to my parents for their support throughout - not least my mother to almost the very end; what in quiet, unseen ways Egyptology owes her by her manif kindnesses, its practitioners will never really know.

The image contains handwritten text in a script that appears to be Hieroglyphic Egyptian or a similar ancient script. The handwriting is dense and complex, typical of historical or archaeological documentation. The page is divided into sections, possibly denoting different paragraphs or topics, but the handwriting is not immediately legible without expertise in the script. There are numerical and possibly date-related annotations interspersed throughout the page.

Without a closer examination or translation, it's challenging to provide a coherent transcription of the text. The page seems to be part of a larger document, possibly involving archaeological or historical data, given the nature of the script.
